One subscription, every companion: GoMirra launches its AI companion platform for personal development

SYDNEY, Australia - 26 July 2026 - GoMirra, a new AI companion platform from First Kind AI Inc., is now open to the public. The pitch is simple: a single subscription gives access to every companion on the platform - girlfriends and boyfriends - each with their own personality, voice, and memory of the relationship.

Unlike one-off chatbots, GoMirra companions are designed for continuity. They remember earlier conversations, learn a user's goals and interests over time, and carry that context into every chat, by text or voice.

The company deliberately frames companions as supportive and growth-oriented. Onboarding builds an identity map of the user, and companions use it to personalise conversations around goals, patterns, and wellbeing.

GoMirra offers monthly and yearly plans, and visitors can meet the companions before subscribing. Adults 18+ only.

About First Kind AI

First Kind AI Inc. operates GoMirra (gomirra.com), an AI companion platform where adults chat by text and voice with personalised AI companions that remember what they share. Every companion is an AI character - not a real person - and the service is strictly for users aged 18 and over. Companion voices are produced with voice models created, with consent and under licence, from recordings by professional adult voice actors.
